

TINLEY LEGION POST HALL FIRE SCENE

Last Saturday night while a private dance was in progress at the Community Hall, fire broke out on the stage, but owing to the prompt action of comrades Fred Rauch and Walter Mager a panic was averted. They immediately tore down the decorations, all inflammable material, and with the assistance of others confined the fire to the stage. When the fire apparatus arrived the fire was well under control. On Sunday a number of the post members reported at the Hall to clean up the mess that the fire had caused and the stage will be rebuilt with fire proof material also our good comrade Harold Berg deserves commendations for rewiring the Hall. Our Custodian, Sr. Vice-Commander George Rowden has been working far into the night and he states that the Hall is open for engagements again. Monday morning the boys got out long before breakfast and placed the street flags. Don't forget to attend the Legion Dance in Saenger Hall, Saturday night, November 16th, music by Sammy Berks popular orchestra.

Organize Band At Orland Park

On Monday night about forty people met in the Orland Park M. E. church to organize a band. Thirty signed up for instruments and all were very enthusiastic about the proposition.

The Lyon and Healey company who are responsible for the training of the band guarantee to turn out a concert band and also to teach each person how to play his own instrument. If this is not accomplished at the end of three months they contract to take instruments back and return the money paid on instrument. The instructions are given free of charge under an expert band master.

Rev. Sanders says the band is open to any one, boy or girl, man or woman, from the ages of 12 to 60. There are places open in the band for three alto horns and one trombone. The other sections are full but there can be added one more instrument to the cornet, saxophone and clarinet sections. There is also a place open for a snare drummer.

The next meeting of the band organization will be next Monday night, Nov. 18 at 7:30 o'clock. At that time the first lesson will be given. This will be given without instruments. Any wishing to come in who owns an instrument is welcome. If it is necessary to buy one Lyon and Healey have made it possible to have ten months to pay for it. It is not necessary to have any musical background as the instruction starts with the primary principles. The band master guarantees that he can teach anyone how to play if they have lungs to blow a horn.

Former Orland Doctor Dies

Dr. W. C. K. Little, former Orland Park physician, died in Chicago November 3rd at the age of 46 years. At the time of his death he was a Christian Science practitioner. He left Orland about seven years ago. He is survived by his widow, one son Arrian and one daughter, Lucille.

TINLEY PARK GARDEN NOTES

NOVEMBER

Beyond November winter waits
To pile its snow before the gates;
What men call death shall hurl
its stroke
Alike on plant and giant oak—
And yet beneath the snow-drifts
deep
We know the violets are asleep.

November with its lovely breath
Voices the cry: there is no death!
Men read it in a thousand ways;
We see beyond the mist and haze
Which shroud the hills and valleys
deep.
That all shall wake, who fall asleep.

—Eugene Guest

Mrs. E. Anderson program chairman of the Tinley Park Garden Club, and her co-workers are to be congratulated on the wonderful success of the Old Fashioned Party, held last Saturday November 8th also for the delightful time enjoyed by all who attended. The members arrived clad in costumes of many years ago. Time was truly turned backward as we mingled with Martha Washington, Anna Held, and the Gibson Girls. Great, Great Grandmother was also present in all her dignity, wearing a most attractive bonnet and nose veil, around her shoulders fell the soft folds of a fichu over one hundred years old. The costumes were many and varied. Mrs. John Funk carried away first prize as the perfect Lillian Russell. It is said that many an attic was searched the week preceding this event. All was very reminiscent. Gene Mills, Edvin Hug, and Harold Lorenz dressed as clowns, added a novel bit of entertainment with song and dance. Milton Zeuner presided at the piano. There was a fish pond full of gifts for both big and little folks; also prizes for the winners of all games. Mrs. George Hartman donated a beautiful basket door-stop which was a prize later in the evening. Harry Mager held the lucky number which to the delight of his good wife, Lolly-pop dolls decorated the tables and a very delicious lunch was served by the refreshment committee of which Mrs. J. Klepper was chairman. Mrs. Dini donated the ice cream. Our president, Mrs. R. J. Hug had as her guest, Mrs. George Lorenz. The Garden Club wishes to thank Mrs. Hartman, Mrs. Dini, Mrs. E. Anderson and Mrs. J. Klepper, also all, who by their co-operation helped to make the party the success it was.

The Oak Forest Garden Club has extended an invitation to the Tinley Park Garden Club to attend a lecture November 21 at the M. E. church, 159th and Oak st. Two o'clock is the time.

Our next regular meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Goessel, Friday afternoon, November 15.

COMING EVENTS

On December 9 the members of the Garden Club of Illinois will have the privilege of hearing two lectures by G. Clyde Fisher, Ph. D., Curator of the American Museum of Natural History, New York.

At eleven o'clock Mr. Fisher will

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Krusemark, Frankfort, Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Krusemark were greatly honored in observance of their golden wedding anniversary in the social room in the St. Peter's Evangelical church, Frankfort, Ill., Wednesday night, November 6, 1929.

The social room was beautifully decorated in white and gold. The tables were placed in horse shoe fashion over which streamers of white and gold formed a canopy.

Above the bend of the horse shoe hung a large wedding bell with streamers of white and gold. In the center of the bend a three tiered wedding cake was placed. It was decorated in gold roses and fifty gold streamers and hearts. Gold candles were lighted when the guests were seated for dinner and white and gold formed the color scheme for all the other table decorations. At each plate a small gold "mum" was placed for the guests to wear. Numerous bouquets of gold chrysanthemums and roses completed the decorations.

After the guests were seated a hymn was sung followed by a prayer which was led by the Rev. Gerhold, immediately a four course hot chicken dinner was served.

The guests consisted of the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Krusemark and their families; sisters and brothers of the celebrants and the Rev. and Mrs. Gerhold. Four nieces served the dinner.

During the course of the dinner a program was given by the children and grandchildren. After a very impressive and beautiful service conducted by the Rev. Gerhold, he presented the celebrants with a framed "Festival Greeting for a Golden Wedding".

Mr. and Mrs. Krusemark received many gifts including a number of gold coins. Hosts of cards of congratulations were received from near and far and their many friends and relatives wish them continued happiness and blessings.

TINLEY LEGION HOLDS PUBLIC INSTALLATION

The Tinley Park Legion Post held a public installation of officers in the Community hall, Wednesday evening of this week. W. W. O'Donnell, 4th district commander and Jack Poorman, state senior vice-commander were in charge of the installation ceremonies.

The program was opened with a military selection by a famous one-man orchestra. Following the music the colors were advanced in front of the platform and commander Frank Hoar of the Tinley Park Post gave an address. He was in charge of the meeting. The installing officers also spoke. Following the program, the rest of the evening was given over to dancing. Refreshments were served. A large crowd attended the installation.

Hearing on Tinley Sewer Nov. 19

A public hearing on the Tinley Park sewer project is to be held at the village hall on the evening of November 19th at which time arguments for and against the proposed improvement will be heard.

Tinley Ladies Surprise Oak Forest Vets

The ex-service men of Oak Forest were surprised on Monday, Armistice Day, when a group of Tinley Park women mostly wives of the Legion trooped in with their arms laden with good things to eat, Cakes, Jellies, Cookies, Canned goods etc. Those in the party were Mrs. Rowden, Hoar, Berg, Miller, Combs, Brennan, Kelcher, Campbell and Steinhagen.

They spoke on "Wild Flowers", and at two in the afternoon his subject will be "With John Burroughs in His Favorite Haunts". No one is better qualified to speak about the great American naturalist, as Mr. Fisher paid many visits to Mr. Burroughs, tramping with him over his native hills, and studying with him the habits of their wild animal friends. At all times Mr. Fisher carried his camera and his talk will be illustrated with the pictures he secured on these visits.

The annual Chrysanthemum Show at Garfield Park Conservatory will begin November the 10th and continue three weeks.

If the members of any particular club should desire to make a special study of chrysanthemums at this time, they will find Mr. Koch glad to give them assistance, provided they make arrangements with him previous to their visit.

The show will be open to the public during the day and evening and the admission is free.

Candy Vending Machine Owners Pay License

A question in which villages are interested is whether the owners of gum and candy vending machines usually found in railroad depots in small towns, can be forced to take out special licenses as provided by ordinance in most villages. Mokena has found that such companies can be made to take out such a special license as Karl E. Krapp, village clerk of Mokena took the matter up with an eastern corporation operating a candy and gum vending machine in the Rock Island depot in Mokena and the corporation sent their check to pay for the special license fee as required by village ordinance.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS ORGANIZE AT MOKENA

At a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Semmler in Mokena Saturday afternoon a Camp Fire Girls organization was perfected with Miss Bertha Benson in charge as the Guardian. A number of years ago when the first Camp Fire Girls organization was started in Mokena, Mrs. Semmler was the guardian.

Orland Parish Play Success

The play "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" given by the dramatic department of the Chicago Southwest Suburban Community Parish under the direction of Mr. Jones was a decided success. There were young people from four communities in the play and every one of them carried their part in a very fine way. Each part was a character part and required very good acting to bring it out.

The part of the Stranger taken by Mr. Lysen of Worth was exceptionally well done. It was an exceedingly difficult part but Mr. Lysen seemed to live into the part.

The other parts in the play each of which carried equal importance as to character and plot was taken by Miss Clarice Mahaffey of Palos Park, Mr. Francis Yunker of Palos Park, Miss Lois Ludwig, Pearl Cooper of Orland Park, Ruth Mitchell, George Kraus and Mrs. Jones of Worth, Mr. Tinley and Miss Brown of Lemont and Mr. George Munch of Palos Park.

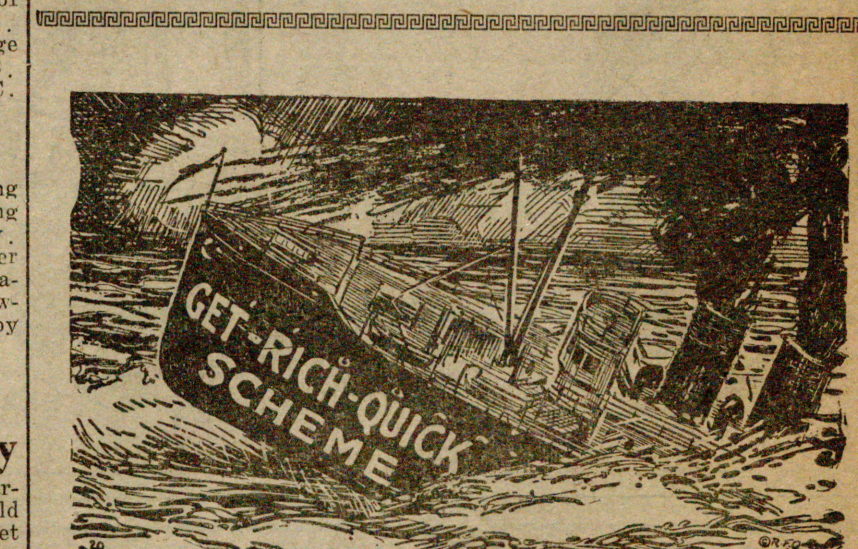

The play will be given at Marley and Lemont at a later date.

IDEAL SUIT FOR LATE AUTUMN; FUR-EMBELLISHED CLOTH COATS

THIS is indeed a "suit season," and the program is a fascinating one, such that leads not only to the heart strings but to the purse strings as well. Of the model pictured it is not too much to say that it is the suit ideal according to standards set for smart outdoor wear.

Everything about this costume is chic, down to the slightest detail. Analyzing it step by step the first item of note is the tweed itself, which is of the loose-woven type, for the loose soft weaves are the "last word." Its coloring is perfect, being brown with of satiny sheen, trimmed with glossy luxurious black lynx, for Paris proclaims the vogue of the all-black coat. However, the original of the model pictured happens to be in one of the new radiant browns, for brown in all its variations is perhaps the most widely acclaimed color of the season, although rich, beautiful greens are running a close second. One of fashion's whims is to dye the fur to match the cloth it trims, which decree has been carried out to a nicety in the lavish fox borderings on this coat. It is interesting to note that the cream white mixture. Since the mode sets such esthetic value on matching furs, one expects the astrakhan tuxedo collar to carry brown and cream tones, which it does most harmoniously. And there's the satin blouse! It's exquisite eggshell tint tunes in with the color scheme. Furthermore this satin blouse indulges in a jabor of self-material and a flock of little bows, which it should be fashionable.

The little chenille-crocheted toque done in tweedlike effect crowns milady with chic. It is just such millinery as fashion prescribes for the tweed-clad, who would be smartly hatted. Coming down to earth, cunning oxfords greet the eye. They "tell the world" that oxfords are "in" again. This particular pair is done in brown kid and lizard, repeating the tone colorings of the tweed suit.

This costume if developed in black and white, or rather black, white and gray, would be equally as successful. In which event the order of procedure would be black and white for the loose-weave tweed, gray for the as-flare of the sleeves and the flare of the hemline correspond. One of the pleasures of the new coats is to assume related lines, thus achieving a unified silhouette. Flares and flares are involved in modern coat construction, some cut a la princess as the picture defines, others achieved through cunningly devised circular fullness or cleverly devised inset godets.

And have you noticed how very slenderizing is the diagonal wrap around effect of the coat illustrated? It's the latest! According to certain style enthusiasts, whose mission it is to create coats, the thing to do is to omit the usual single button and loop fastening and to casually hold the coat in place. It is an art, to be sure, but the young woman in the picture seems to have mastered it.

Fur is used not only lavishly on autumn and winter cloth coats, but it is manipulated in ways so extraordinary, as to create a new and fascinating interest in all coatology, from the least expensive types to the most traskan, footwear and headwear being carried out in black and white tones. In the styling of the fur-trimmed tweed suit, such details are observed as normal waist lines, the tuck-in blouse, skirts with yokes, length of coats from the standpoint of three-quarter, seven-eighth, or jacket types, also widened hemlines achieved with plaits, flares, or circular cuts.

Masterpieces are they, the wondrous fur-embellished cloth coats which are at this time being flaunted before the admiring eyes of fashion's clientele. The coat in the lower picture might have been of kitten's ear broadcloth exclusive. It matters not whether furs be of the flat fabriclike variety or the sumptuous long-haired type, they are handled with infinite cunning.

Just a word about correct foot-wear: It is significant that the youthful fashionable in this picture is wearing the simplest kind of pumps. In this instance, milady's coat being brown, she is wearing brown pumps with dusky brown hose. With the all-black costume to be chic, one should wear black suede pumps and sheer meta gray stockings.

SOME HINTS

It is claimed that a copper receptacle for cut flowers will almost double their life. Cut the stems, place the flowers in warm water for a few minutes until the stems are full then place them in a copper dish filled with cold water.

Another friend for the candy eating: The kindly policeman now feels unequipped for his day's work without a sack of candy in his pocket. He not only regales himself with a tid-bit occasionally but he has it to offer to the frightened child when lost. A lollipop or a piece of candy is an almost unfailing solace, and through the candy his name and quite often even the street number may be obtained.

The orange juice habit is becoming so common that the breakfast table without a small glass of orange juice for young and old seems lacking in its setting.

An orange itself is something more than a luscious dainty fruit; it possesses one hundred calories of food value, contains calcium, phosphorus and iron, besides being rich in vitamins A, B and C.

Continue during the day with fruit cup, fruit salad and fruit desserts and the body will be furnished with the ingredients it most needs.

Small shallow wooden boxes make fine containers for small jars of fruit and jelly glasses. When cleaning the shelf the box and contents is easily moved and when well labeled is a help to find quickly what is needed.

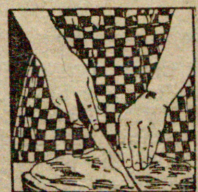

When covering jelly glasses with paraffin, set the glasses in water, then any droppings of the wax may be easily gathered and used again.

Orange Pumpkin Pie.—Take one and one-fourth cups of pumpkin, seven-eighths of a cup of brown sugar, one teaspoonful, each of cinnamon and ginger, two and one-half tablespoonfuls of orange juice, a teaspoonful of the grated rind, two well beaten eggs, one cupful of milk, and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Make a smooth paste of the spices with a quarter of a cupful of additional milk, add to the sugar and eggs, then the remaining ingredients. Pour into a deep pie plate lined with pastry and bake in a hot oven for twenty minutes, then reduce the heat and bake in a slow oven for forty minutes longer.

A good rheumatism cure is fasting for several days using plenty of orange juice every few hours during the day, also water as much as one needs to drink. It is certainly a much more pleasant medicine than most rheumatism remedies and cannot be at all harmful.

Choice Foods.

Here is a lemon pie which has the reputation of being the best ever:

Van de Kamp's Lemon Pie.—Take one cupful of sugar, one-third of a cupful of flour, a bit of salt, the grated rind of one lemon, the juice of three, three egg yolks, one cupful of boiling water and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Mix the sugar, flour and salt. Add boiling water, stir and cook fifteen minutes; now add butter, egg yolk, rind and juice of the lemons. Turn into a well baked pastry shell and cover with a meringue, using the egg whites and one and one-half cupfuls of powdered sugar and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Cover the pie and bake until brown.

Marmalade French Toast.—Beat two eggs, add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of milk. Spread six slices of bread with orange marmalade, put together in pairs. Soak the bread in the egg mixture until soft, then cook on a hot buttered griddle until well browned on both sides.

Lemon Mint Jelly.—Take a package of lemon gelatin and dissolve in two cupfuls of boiling water in which has been steeped a good sized bunch of mint, well covered for ten minutes. Chill and mold in small molds; serve with lamb. Garnish with a fresh sprig of mint on top of each mold of jelly.

Rice Custard Supreme.—Beat two eggs until light, add two cupfuls of milk, one-half cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one and one-third cupful of cooked rice, the grated rind of an orange and one cupful of fresh grated coconut; turn into a baking dish, set into a pan of hot water and bake for half an hour in a moderate oven.

Another Fruit Salad Dressing.—Add to four well beaten egg yolks, four tablespoonfuls each of flour, and sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful each of dry mustard, white pepper, and one-half cupful each of pineapple juice, lemon juice and water. Cook in a double boiler until the dressing is thick and creamy, stirring well to avoid lumps.

Everything Fixed for Speed in Elopement

The modern Romeo was making arrangements for eloping with his Juliet. "Now, darling," he said, "we'll run over our schedule for the last time. The car will be at the door just before midnight. You understand that?"

"Yes, precious."

"I'll creep round to your window and throw a handful of stones up against it to let you know I'm there. Do you follow me, sweetheart?"

"Absolutely, my own."

"You will then creep downstairs with your suitcase. You'll be quite ready with it when I arrive, won't you?"

She nodded. "Quite, dearest," she replied. "Mother is packing it for me now!"

"What is a pedestrian?" To this question a girl gave the answer:

"A pedestrian is a girl who won't neck."

Armored Fighters Get Over Ground in Hurry

A "greyhound" army tank that charges over sand dunes and plowed fields at 40 miles an hour and streaks down highways at a mile a minute is the latest addition to the fighting strength of the United States. The speedy war machine, which carries three men, passes the ordinary tank as though the latter were standing still and gets under way before the more unwieldy machines of the past begin to move, says Popular Science Monthly.

The spectacular new tank showed what it can do recently in tests conducted before army officers at Camp Meade, Md. Over rough ground, its caterpillar treads carried it at 42.55 miles an hour. When the treads were removed, the armored fighter, running on wheels, was clocked over a trial course at 60 miles an hour. The machine, which was designed by J. Walter Christie, an armament expert, is about two-thirds the size of the average army tank. It is intended, its inventor point out, for quick smashing surprise attacks upon enemy lines rather than for heavy combat work.

Old Lady's Bright Idea as to Mending Methods

The brilliant Dean Howard Chandler Robbins, who has resigned his office in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, said the other day at a luncheon in New York:

"When a marriage fails it often happens that both contracting parties are to blame."

"A young wife consulted an old lady about her husband. He was drinking, she said, and gambling, and flirting, and what not."

"The old lady listened rather quizzically, for she knew that the young wife herself had rather a name for daring frock- and cock-tail parties and general all-round neglect of the home."

"Oh, dear!" So the lamentation went on. "Oh, dear, if I could only mend Jim's ways!"

"To mend his ways," said the quizzical old lady, "the best beginning would be to mend his socks."—Detroit Free Press.

Deception

Mabel Walker Willebrandt, although doing man's work, often proves that there is very little of the masculine in her life and her logic. She is as thoroughly feminine as her sisters of the kitchen and the sewing circle. At a luncheon not so very long ago she said:

FAMILY DOCTOR LEARNED THIS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

Dr. Caldwell loved people. His years of practice convinced him many were ruining their health by careless selection of laxatives. He determined to write a harmless prescription which would get at the cause of constipation, and correct it.

Today, the prescription he wrote in 1885 is the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness and lack of appetite or energy showed the bowels of men, women and children were sluggish. It proved successful in even the most obstinate cases; old folks liked it for it never gripes; children liked its pleasant taste. All drugstores today have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in bottles.

Efficiency for Pie Makers

Efficiency has invaded the kitchens of Germany, and Dr. Max Mengeringhausen, styling himself a "household engineer," has eliminated waste motions in pie making. He placed a small lamp on the wrist of a woman while she was preparing the pastry like mother did it. A camera recorded every movement of the woman's wrist in line on a photographic plate. When these were studied they revealed the different motions necessary for the operation, and suggested how more convenient kitchen equipment and better organization of the work might reduce the fatigue involved in kitchen labor.

CHICKEN SUPPER and BAZAAR

The great event of the Bachelors Grove Church, Chicken supper and bazaar will take place next Thursday, Nov. 21. Supper will be served from 4:30 o'clock until all are served. Last year 700 partook of the supper. Special arrangements are being made for good service.

The supper and bazaar will again be held at the Saenger hall, Tinley Park.

TINLEY PARK TOWN TOPICS

The members of the Tinley Park Garden club, Iris chapter, were hostesses Friday evening to their husbands. The affair was an "Old Time Party" and many interesting costumes of Olden times could be seen.

Many enjoyable games were played and something was doing every minute of the evening, which was climaxed with a very enjoyable and palatable luncheon.

The Legion members have been putting in considerable over time "at their" community hall, which was damaged somewhat by the recent fire.

They have rewired the hall and altered the stage with fire proof materials.

The bowling team of which J. Miller is captain was presented with new bowling shirts and black bow ties, last Thursday evening. The shirts have the name of "Rolls Beverages" sewed on the back. Mr. F. Rauch, who is a member of this team, is the Tinley Park representative of the "Roll Beverage Co."

Immediately upon the receipt of the shirts and ties, the team went to Homewood and beat the E. Anderson team three straight games in league play. These shirts must have been SOME inspiration.

Many Tinley folks were present at the American Legion Post of Heesevich Saturday evening.

Many members of this post are planning to reciprocate by coming to Tinley Legion dance, Saturday evening of this week.

The Tinley Park Lutheran church held its Mission Festival Sunday with services both morning and evening. Out of town pastors officiated and Rev. Mr. Fandrey, President of the synod made a brief talk to the Sunday school children.

The members of the Triangle Club are planning on staging a gala affair for the members on Friday evening at the Community Hall.

The Lions held their regular semi-monthly meeting Monday eve. Much discussion was placed on the music situation and the evening the Christmas or holiday dance is to be held.

It was also suggested that the Lions Club purchase or get together with various business men and furnish arm bands to the various members of the bowling league which the Lions Club originally sponsored. Emphasis was placed on the suggestion that Tinley Park be shown on these bands. It was, however, decided to wait until the first half of the season was completed.

The Hall Committee on basket ball and indoor sports met immediately after the meeting and went over to the Saenger hall to get figures on what would be required to put the hall in readiness for basket ball and other indoor sports.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Savage, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lauffer and family attended a party Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Aspel in Joliet. The affair was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Marti, Jr., who were recently married.

MAY COME BACK

According to report, the Roumanian Government has suggested to Carol the possibility of his return to that country. Had it not been for his escapades in France, he would be the ruler of Roumania today, instead of having a Regency act in behalf of his young son, Prince Michael, who is now the "King." World's Fair Notes

In line with the general speeding up of plans for Chicago's Century of Progress exposition that is a result of President Hoover's action in giving official recognition to the fair by inviting the nations of the world to participate, R. P. Shaw, executive secretary of the advisory committee appointed for the exposition by the National Research Council, will spend the week in Chicago conferring with the fair officials and various scientific groups.

President Hoover's recognition of the world's fair project took the form of a proclamation, issued after President Rufus C. Dawes called at the White House and advised him that more than $5,000,000 has been subscribed for the fair by Chicago citizens.

Mr. Dawes was accompanied to the White House by Major L. R. Lohr, manager of the exposition, the two being met there and accompanied to Mr. Hoover's office by General Charles G. Dawes, American ambassador to the Court of St. James and chairman of the fair's finance committee, who was a White House guest.

At the conclusion of the formal ceremony of notification, President Hoover had his picture taken with Mr. Dawes and Major Lohr in the act of handing the former the copy of the official proclamation.

President Hoover's world's fair proclamation reads as follows: "By the president of the United States of America."

A PROCLAMATION

Whereas, February 5, 1929, there was approved a joint resolution of congress, reading in part as follows:

"Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the United States in congress assembled, that whenever it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the president that a sum of not less than $5,000,000 has been raised and is available to the Chicago World's Fair Centennial Celebration corporation, for the purposes of a world's fair to be held in the city of Chicago, in the state of Illinois, in the year 1933, to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the incorporation of Chicago as a municipality, the president is authorized and requested, by proclamation or in such other manner as he may deem proper, to invite the participation of the nations of the world in the celebration;

"Whereas, it has been shown to my satisfaction by Rufus C. Dawes, president, that sum of not less than $5,000,000 has been raised and made available to the corporation conducting the celebration mentioned in this resolution, and, whereas, the name of this corporation has been changed to a Century of Progress; whereas, its board of trustees has obtained the assistance of men eminent in science and industry to aid in presenting those historic inventions and symbols which demonstrate the progress and the modern spirit underlying industry and agriculture, and in general to present exhibits showing advancement in the industrial and fine arts;

"Whereas, I believe the people of many nations would be pleased to unite with the people of the United States in the celebration of a century of progress and of the centenary of Chicago, itself an outstanding example of the great and rapid changes this century has produced;

"Now, therefore, in compliance with the joint resolution of congress, I, Herbert Hoover, president of the United States, invite the participation of the nations in this exposition of a century of progress, to the end that there may be shown in Chicago examples of contributions made to that progress by the peoples of many nations; and in order that the achievement and inventions of the great men of the world in science, in art, in drama and in sport, as well as in industry and agriculture, may be fittingly acknowledged and acclaimed;

"In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington, this 6th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred

Rations for Fighters

During the World war the German soldiers were supplied with tea and coffee without milk. Small rations of rum and arrack were furnished to troops in field and camp. These rations were given out in the evening to be mixed with the tea. Fifteen to twenty men received one bottle. In times of great physical exertion, the allowance of sugar was increased.

Home Canning Made Easy

By GRACE VIALI GRAY
Household Science Institute.

9 CANNING POINTS

1. Have all equipment in readiness before canning is started.
2. Pack products in jars or cans that will seal air tight. Spoilage in canned foods is frequently due to imperfect containers.
3. Pressure cookers are helpful in the canning of meat and all non-acid vegetables. The high pressure obtainable kills all spores, thus assuring perfect sterilization. Pressure cookers also save time and fuel.
4. If you live in the South, or in very high altitudes, or in the west coast states, get the time-tables for canning recommended by your state college. In these sections it is recommended not to use hot water for the canning of vegetables and meats but the pressure cooker.

Grace Vial Gray, kills all spores, thus assuring perfect sterilization. Pressure cookers also save time and fuel.

5. For exhibit and contest purposes always use glass jars.
6. Empty space in a jar will not lessen the keeping qualities of the food, but it detracts from the appearance and is a waste of jar space. However, if a glass jar has lost liquid during processing, do not open to refill.
7. To can fruit juices pasteurize for from 25 to 30 minutes at 100 to 170 degrees. Boiling fruit juice destroys the flavor.

Packing Chicken in Jars.

170 degrees. Boiling fruit juice destroys the flavor.

8. Canning does not change poor products into good products so use good products to put into jars. And do not spoil good products by half-way methods of canning. Use the quickest, safest, and most efficient method of canning, which is the pressure cooker method.
9. Before storing canned products away in a cool dry airy place for winter use keep the jars under observation at room temperature for at least one week.

OFFER $5,825 IN PRIZES IN NATIONAL CANNING CONTEST

To ward off a threatened surplus of farm products in many sections and to impress more housewives with the economy and healthfulness of home canned foods, a National Canning Contest is now under way to find the best jar of canned fruit, vegetable and meat in the country. Two hundred and twenty-two cash prizes totaling $5,825 have been hung up by the Sears Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, including a grand sweepstakes prize of $1,250 for the best jar of canned food entered in the contest. Any woman or girl is eligible to enter the contest, but entries must be in not later than October 1, 1929. Further information on the contest and free jar and entry blanks for sending in entries may be had by writing to Anne Williams, director, National Canning Contest, 925 S. Homan Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Stock Show Opens Nov. 30

The essential wonders of the rural world and that vast empire of valley and plains of which Chicago is the commercial capital will be vividly on view at the Chicago Stock Yard the last of this month.

Opening on November 30, the first Saturday following Thanksgiving, and continuing throughout the next week until December 7, the International Live Stock Exposition will be a Mecca to thousands from both country and town.

Judging Contests First

According to an advance program issued by the management, a pre-exposition event will be the farm boys' and girls' livestock judging contests on Friday, November 29, the day before the formal opening of the Show. Here selected teams of farm youths from every state will pit their knowledge of livestock in spirited competition.

Saturday, November 30, youth will still be in the limelight, with the state collegiate livestock judging teams and the Junior Live Stock Feeding Contest, from which ranks last year's grand-champion steer came, occupying the main program. On this day and throughout the following, scoring of the hundreds of samples of the finest harvests of the world, entered in the International Grain and Hay Show will keep a large staff of crops experts busy.

Monday, December 2, will see the exposition in full stride. The judging rings will be crowded with nominations for the highest honors of the 1929 livestock show season, including Percheron and Shire horses and entries in the fat classes of all breeds. The awarding of championships in the fat classes, always a tensely dramatic occasion, will be on Tuesday, and at the same time judging of the Shorthorn, Hereford, and Aberdeen-Angus cattle classes will begin, and will be continued along with the other breeds of stock, thruout the week.

Auction Sales Spectacular

For other details of the judging schedule, anyone particularly interested in the time set for one or more breed of stock, can obtain it by addressing his inquiry to the exposition, says Manager B. H. Heide.

Auction sales of breeding cattle and fat stock will take place thruout the week. They always attract large audiences of interested on-lookers in addition to buyers. Thursday and Friday will be the big fat stock sale days, with the grand-champion steer scheduled to go under the gavel at 9 a. m. Thursday, December 5. Last year's champion, owned by a boy, brought $7.00 a pound and weighed 1150 pounds. Sales of choice breeding cattle are listed for Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of "International Week".

Collect Millions In Corporation Fees

Fees collected by the corporation department of his office will exceed $4,000,000 in 1930. Secretary of State William J. Stratton announced today.

In the first ten months of this year the collections of the department aggregated $3,887,486.39 as compared with $3,394,090.44 collected in the same period of 1928. This is an increase of $493,395.95 for the ten months and the increase for the entire year probably will exceed $500,000.

The report of the corporation department shows that 5132 domestic corporations were licensed to do business in this state in the first ten months of 1928. This compares with 5521 licensed in the same period of this year, an increase of 389. On the same comparative basis the foreign corporations increased 195.

The collections of this department go into the general revenue fund in the state treasury and reduce the amount that must be raised by direct taxation of property to carry on the business of the state government.

The automobile department of the secretary of state's office, the greatest money raiser of all state departments, will turn approximately $18,000,000 into the state treasury this year. Inasmuch as the automobile license law provides all of this money shall go into the road fund, the annual collections of this department alone would pay for 600 miles of hard surfaced pavement at a cost of $30,000 a mile.

THE COLOSSI OF MEMNON AT THEBES

Photo shows the famous Colossi of Memnon at Thebes, Egypt. These colossal landmarks on the west bank of the Nile have suffered severely at the hands of time, but they still hold their attraction because of the innumerable associations which cling to them. The figures are carved out of pearly sandstone conglomerate of a yellow brown hue. Both figures represent Amenophis III, and they stood originally before the mortuary temple erected by that ancient monarch. They both stand 64 feet in height, including the 13 foot pedestal on which they rest. Memnon, in ancient Greek legend, helped the Trojans against the Greeks after Hector's death; he killed Nestor's son, Antilochus, but was himself killed by Achilles. Later writers represent him as an Ethiopian or a Persian. The Greeks gave the name of Memnon to a colossal statue at Thebes in Egypt, which was really that of a king Amenophis; it gave forth a musical sound at dawn. Ptolemy Lathyrus besieged Thebes for three years, and gave it its death-blow, and the city was then degraded from "the metropolis," and in Strabo's time it was merely a congeries of villages. At the present day the glory of Thebes consists in its anclide temples. Of these the best known are the El Kurna, the Ramesseum and Medinet-Abu Temples, founded by Seti I, Rameses II, and Rameses III, respectively. To really understand the beauty of these famous Greek works of art one must have a thorough knowledge of Greek mythology for only in that way can the legends that are told about them be appreciated. Count Luckner, the Sea Devil

By
LOWELL THOMAS

Copyright by Doubleday, Doran & Co.

Running before the wind, the Seadler,
now under her proper name and with all
the Norwegian camouflage cleared away, sped southward toward Madeira. The gun crew worked hard at drill and target practice, and Count Luckner offered a prize to the first man who should sight the first prize vessel. Off Gibraltar the raiders met a large British steamship, and raising the signal "Chronometer time, please," prepared to board her.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

I shouted the command, and the drum beat "clear for action." A section of the rail could be lowered and raised as a gun shield. It dropped clattering and revealed the muzzle of the cannon. Up with the German flag and fire, one across her bows.

It was the Seadler's first shot
against the enemy.

What's that, by Joe? Nothing happened, no movement on deck, no slowing down of the ship. Then a flag went up the mast, the British flag. It was like the fantastic things that happen in a dream. I thought I must be asleep. Another shot across her bows.
She suddenly changes her course.
Hello, she wants to get away. A shot over the stern, another over the smokestack, and now she hove to.

A boat was in the water rowing toward us. We all put on our best manners, and I welcomed Captain Chewn aboard the Seadler. What did we want of him, he asked, so bewildered
that he stuttered. "Well, first a friendly chat," I replied. He was an old salt with a scraggly gray beard. I liked him right off. His ship was the Gladys Royal, bound from Cardiff
with five thousand tons of coal for Buenos Aires. I told him that, much as I disliked sending any ship to the bottom of the sea, nevertheless, we must sink the Gladys Royal.

"Oh, no," he argued, "we are bound for a neutral port and won't harm anything. It will be bad for me to lose my ship, and I have a wife and children at home."

"Do you believe, Captain Chewn,
that, under the same circumstances, a British naval officer would show any mercy to a German ship?"

He made no reply.

We now got an explanation of the queer behavior of his ship that had so puzzled us after our first shot. Captain Chewn, an old-timer at sea, simply thought we were trying to compare time in the old traditional way, by firing a blank mortar. He had raised his flag to serve as the mortar shot on his side. He would afterward lower it to give the exact moment. That is the way in vogue today. But when our second shot was fired, the cook on the Gladys Royal saw the shell strike
the water and thought we had sighted
a submarine and were firing at it. He gave the alarm, and the captain started to zuzzag. It was only after the third shot that they saw our canon
pointed at them and the German battle flag at our masthead.

"By Joe," and the captain pounded
the rail with open admiration, "you foiled me bloody well. It was the d—dest trap I ever saw."

I sent a prize crew aboard the Gladys Royal with orders to have her follow the Seadler. I wanted to wait and blow her up after nightfall. Cruisers might be roaming somewhere in these parts, and it would be unwise to run the risk of attracting their attention with the sound of an explosion.

We photographed our capture carefully. At dusk we transferred the steamer's twenty-six men, white and black, to our ship. The captain brought his belongings aboard. I also sent Lieutenant Preiss to pack up everything aboard the captured vessel
that he thought we might need and ferry it over. He displayed excellent judgment, too, and turned up with a welcome store of excellent provisions.

We sailors could be content with a sailor's fare whenever need be, but we wanted our guests to dine well at all times to help make up for the sorrow of losing their ships.

Preiss and his men planted a bomb
in her hold, lit the time fuse, and took to the boats. Fifteen minutes passed. Then the Gladys Royal trembled fore and aft.

She went down stern first, and in ten minutes her forward quarter stuck straight out of the sea. Her bow remained above water for a long time.
A steamer hove into sight. She carried side lights, and from that we judged her to be a neutral. Suddenly a second explosion, from the accumulation of air pressure, burst the bow of the Gladys Royal. With a final quiver, she took her last plunge into the depths and slid out of sight, while we scurried away into the night with all sails set.

Captain Chewn was agreeably surprised to find himself assigned to a cozy cabin. His only complaint was that he had no one to enjoy it with
him. This sociable mariner liked company. So we promised to supply him
with companions as soon as possible.

Much as we wanted to please Captain Chewn and show him that we were accommodating hosts, we allowed the next ship to sail by in peace. She was a British passenger steamer bound through Gibraltar. We had room enough for all her passengers, but we did not want to be bothered with women and children.

At noon, with a heavy sea running,
we sighted a steamer cutting diagonally across our course. No flag, no name. We signaled her for information, but there was no response. Surely she must be an Englishman with a hard-boiled efficient skipper. You know how a British captain often is,

with his nose right down on his job,
with no thought except his cargo and
his lookout for submarines and cruisers? Well, evidently this chap couldn't be bothered with a funny old Norwegian windjammer. Sails set and motor running, we held across his course
and got in front of him. Now, at sea,
a sailing vessel always has the right of way over a steamship because the latter can maneuver more rapidly.
But that meant nothing to this steamship. She swerved not an inch, and seemed quite content to run us down.

We had to jib and let him go in the wind, or there would have been a collision. The Englishman passed us at three hundred yards.

The German flag was climbing
swiftly to our masthead.

"Fire," I commanded, "let's see if
that will make him change his mind."

The gun boomed and a shell went screaming over the steamer.

"By Joe," I said, "he sticks to his opinions."

The steamer's stacks belched fresh clouds of smoke. Her course changed not at all. Another shot, this one, by way of emphasis, just over the smokestack. The steamer turned into the wind.

"A wise baby, that skipper," commented Leudemann sarcastically. "He knows a windjammer can't sail against
the wind."

We, of course, couldn't catch him in a chase, but our range was still point-blank. A shot through the smokestack and a couple into the hull. We could see the crew running around wildly. A siren was screaming. A shell exploded on deck. The propeller stopped, and the steamer slowed
down and lay rolling in the trough
of the sea.

The Englishman must have known that he hadn't a ghost of a chance to escape under fire at such close range.
First of all, he had been discourteous
in ignoring our friendly signals. Then he had violated the rules of ocean
traffic in not giving our clipper the right of way. And now in cold blood

he had endangered the life of his crew. According to the unwritten rules of etiquette among pirates and raiders, it was up to us to put out a boat and board a prize. But instead I signaled the steamer:

"Captain, come aboard!" Let him come over to us. If he's such a tough guy, we'll show him who rules the waves in this part of the Atlantic.

It was funny. Finally, I had to laugh. The ship was the Lundy Island bound for France with a cargo of Madagascar sugar. An important cargo, sure enough. Sugar was scarce in all the countries at war, and we Germans, whose supply of sugar consisted mostly of a great longing for it,
could sympathize with the captain's eagerness to get the precious merchandise to port. When the first shot struck the Lundy Island, the crew,
black, brown, and yellow, fell into a panic. With shells falling, running the ship or staying with it meant nothing to them. The captain roared and stormed, but that was all the good
it did. So he seized the helm, himself.
Just then a shot hit the rudder chain,
and when he turned the wheel nothing happened. The crew started taking to the boats, and the tough old salt was left alone on deck. Our signal for him to come on board left him helpless. His boats were out there with the crew floundering at the oars. The sea was pitching and rolling, and they were so frightened they could hardly row. He paced the bridge with his handbag in his hand, a solitary, woebegone figure. We finally had to send a boat for him.

On our deck he got a stern, formal
reception.

"Any casualties among your men,
captain?"

"No, worse luck. Not a man
scratched, by Joe, and the blighters
scurried around like rabbits at a dog show. Look at them in the boats out there. They haven't got here yet, the beggars. Let me at that gun, by Joe,
and I'll sink them."

It was hard not to sympathize with him, but still his conduct had apparently been inexcusable.

"Why did you endanger your men's lives like that, captain? It was only the height of folly, but it was inhuman!"

Just then our ship's surgeon, Doctor
Pletsch, came along.

"Hello, captain."

"Hello, doctor."

They greeted each other like long lost friends, save that there was a shadow of uneasiness in the captain's fraternal demonstrations.

Doctor Pletsch had gone out with our armored cruiser Moewe on one of her freebooting expeditions. Among the captured captains of that cruise
was our present guest, who, while aboard the Moewe, had struck up a pleasant comradeship with the doctor.
Now he, along with the other captains, had been released on parole.
They had signed written promises that they would engage in no further war activity. Believing he had broken his parole, he thought the Germans would hang him from a yardarm if they ever caught him. When he saw
we were an auxiliary cruiser, he already felt a rope tightening around his neck. That was why he had tried so desperately to get away.

We amused ourselves with a formal discussion, after which I addressed
our guest with suitable gravity.

"We are of the opinion, captain,
that your parole did not cover your calling as a merchant captain. Only direct combatant service was included
under the heading of war activity.
Therefore, we feel ourselves under no
unhappy necessity of hanging you."

Well, the smile on that hard, weather-beaten face was like a sunrise. We now understood the all-too-human motives behind his actions, and we respected his plucky attempt to get away in the face of point-blank gunfire. Sailors ourselves, we could only salute this skipper who, with a worthless, spineless crew, had to take the wheel himself, and then only to find his rudder chain smashed.

The sea was so rough now that we did not send a bombing party to board
the Lundy Island, but sank her by direct gunfire.

That night Leudemann and I sat
over bottles of beer and talked about
our prospects.

"Well, old chap," said I, "everything has begun well. It's a fine cruise. But when will they sink us?"

"Not, at any rate," he replied, "until our hotel is full."

You see our buccaneering raid was pretty certain to remain a secret until the time came when lack of space
would compel us to release our prisoners and send them to port. Then the news of our freebooting jaunt
would out, and cruisers would be hot
after us in every part of the world.

"And if we don't capture any more ships," I reflected, "we can go on cruising indefinitely."

"Then let's catch some more quickly," laughed Leudemann. "It will be great sport to play hide and seek with cruisers."

That mate of mine was always itching for trouble. But then that was what we had all come through the blockade in hope of finding, so if we wanted plenty of excitement, then the sooner we sent the crews of eight or ten ships into some port the sooner
would the alarm go out—"German raider in the Atlantic!" Then, too, Lloyd's insurance rates would start to soar when the news got out, and ships
with supplies that the Allies needed badly would be held in port. Also, a number of cruisers would no doubt be detached from blockade patrol duty across the North sea. That was the interesting part of it—those cruisers
and how to elude them.

"Leudemann," I said, "the better
the lookout, the more ships we will catch. We already have a good lookout, but I've thought of a way to have a better one. A hundred pair of eyes are better than two pair."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, from now on, I'm going to change that offer of ten pounds and a bottle of champagne that we promised to the first of our two lookouts to spy
a ship. I'm going to open it to every one on board!"

Needless Pain!

The man who wouldn't drive his
motorcar half a mile when it's out of order, will often drive his brain all day with a head that's throbbing.

Such punishment isn't very good for one's nerves! It's unwise, and it's unnecessary. A tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin will relieve a headache every time. So, remember this accepted antidote for pain, and spare yourself a lot of needless suffering. Read the proven directions and you'll discover many valuable uses for these tablets. For headaches; to check colds. To ease a sore throat and reduce the infection.
For relieving neuralgic, neuritic,
rheumatic pain.

People used to wonder if Bayer Aspirin was harmful. The doctors answered that question years ago.

It is not. Some folks still wonder if it really does relieve pain. That's settled! For millions of men and women have found it does. To cure the cause of any pain you must consult your doctor; but you may always turn to Bayer Aspirin for immediate relief.

BAYER ASPIRIN

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Children Cry for it

Children hate to take medicine
as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland
and harmless as the recipe reads.
(The wrapper tells you just what Castoria contains.)

When Baby's cry warns of colic,
a few drops of Castoria has him
soothed, asleep again in a jiffy.
Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke
its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, use it to keep the system from clogging. Your doctor will tell you Castoria

deserves a place in the family
medicine cabinet until your child is grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a boy in his teens. With this special children's remedy handy, you need never risk giving a boy or girl
medicine meant for grown-ups.
Castoria is sold in every drug store; the genuine always bears
Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

Night Life Gets You if You Don't Watch Out!

War Vet almost takes
count, but pals help.

HOW would you like it if every two weeks you had to give up
your good night's sleep, and work all night instead? This is what happened to W. H. Huggins of 90
Savannah Street, Rochester, New York. When he came back from the War, he took a night "shift" job.

"It certainly shot me all to pieces,"
said Mr. Huggins. "I was licked before I started. My pals noticed that the night shift got me, so during a 'lunch' period in the middle of one night one of them said to me, 'Hug,
I bet I know what's the matter with
you. This irregular life gets us all unless we watch out. Why don't you try Nujol? Most of the boys are onto this little health trick. Try it!'"

"Well, that very night on the way home I got a bottle and within a week I felt like a different person.
I wouldn't know myself. You can lick any job, even a night one, if you get the poisons out of your system
regularly. Nujol sure did it for me!"

That's the great thing about

This kind of man wins no
matter where you put him

Nujol. It absorbs the poisons in your system (we all have them) and cleans them out regularly. It cannot hurt you no matter how long you
take it, and it forms no habit.

Nujol contains no medicines or drugs. It is simply the world's most famous method of bodily lubrication.

You can get a bottle at any good drug store, in a sealed package, for less than the cost of a couple of good cigars. Begin today to prove to yourself how Nujol can help you to lick the toughest job and feel bully!

The Soap That's Known and Sold the World Around

PURITY

Legal Knots Untied by Chinese Solomon

In a village near Peking, China, four tradesmen clubbed together to buy cotton. To protect it from rats they procured a cat, and agreed that each of them owned one of the animal's legs.

Soon afterwards the cat hurt one of its paws, and the owner of that particular leg bound it up with a rag soaked in oil. But the cat went too near the fire, the bandage ignited, and
the terrified animal rushed amongst the bales of cotton, which flared up
and were destroyed.

The three owners of the uninjured

legs sued their partner for loss and damages. The judge ruled thus:

"Since the cat was unable to use
the injured leg, the cotton was set on fire by the action of the three uninjured legs on which the cat ran among the bales of cotton. Consequently these three legs were guilty
and their owners must pay damages
and costs."

Balsa is the lightest wood known weighing only seven pounds per cubic foot.

Pointing to the outstanding success that has attended Illinois' fight against preventable disease, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, in an address before the Illinois welfare conference at Evans-ton, declared that the prevention and cure of mental disorders is the present challenge to physicians and scientists of the state.

"Over forty-three and one-half million dollars, or 35.49 per cent of the state's biennial income, exclusive of road and bond funds, is now devoted to the charitable and penal institutions," Governor Emmerson said. "Slightly less than forty million is devoted to education, which in its broad sense is closely allied with welfare work. Only 16 per cent is devoted to the general government. Maintenance of our charitable and penal institutions constitutes the major burden of the state."

"Our resources will be swamped if the present rate of insanity increase continues."

"The figures I have quoted are disquieting if not alarming. There can be no truce. We need physicians educated to this fact. Some experiments now in progress throw a ray of sunshine through the clouds. The hope of the future rests in the dreamers of science."

The governor declared that the administration of probation and parole laws requires the deepest study.

"Some prisoners," he declared, "show no aptitude for reform. Men of that class and especially men of known criminal records, should be shown little leniency. Others are more unfortunate than criminal. Where they show a desire to reform, they should be given assistance in re-establishing themselves in society. The welfare department is now engaged in a study of proper credits for prisoners who indicate a likelihood of making good upon their return to the outer world."

Upwards of half a billion dollars in worthless and questionable securities have been barred from the Illinois investment market since the legislature created the state securities department 10 years ago, Secretary of State William J. Stratton, who administers this office, announced.

The securities department, the secretary of state said, through its power over the registration of brokers has been able to drive out of the business of selling securities a great number of crooked individuals and, through the power to require a substantial bond, has protected the public against inexperienced brokers and brokers with little capital investment. He stated that as a result of the efforts of the securities department bucket shops have almost disappeared.

Mr. Stratton disclosed that in the current year up to October 1, $650,000,000 worth of securities were approved for sale by the department; 750 brokers and dealers and about 3,500 agents or salesmen were registered.

Harry H. Cleveland, director of the department of public works and buildings, has announced that surveys and plans will be made as rapidly as possible for the construction projects included in the program for state highway development in the metropolitan area of Cook county. When funds are available and the necessary rights of way have been secured by the local people, contracts will be let without delay, he declared. Mr. Cleveland stated that the department recognizes the importance of widening as rapidly as possible radial highways leading from the city of Chicago and of separating grades not only with railroads, but also at intersecting main highways, in order that safety and continuous flow of traffic may be obtained.

One hundred and thirty-eight architects have made preliminary application for admission to the competition to select an architect for designing and constructing in Vincennes, Ind., a permanent memorial commemorating the winning of the old Northwest and the achievements of George Rogers Clark and his associates in the war of the American Revolution, for which the federal government has appropriated $1,000,000. The state of Indiana has appropriated $400,000 and the city of Vincennes by donation of land, approximately $55,000. It is hoped that there may be additional funds from Knox county in which the city of Vincennes is situated, the city of Vincennes and every other state of the old Northwest. The George Rogers Clark Sesquicentennial commission is sponsoring the competition. Simeon D. Fess is chairman of the commission, D. Frank Culbertson, vice chairman, and C. B. Coleman, executive secretary.

Bids for the construction of a new cell house at Pontiac state reformatory, which will contain 500 cells and housing facilities for 1,000 prisoners, received by the state division of architecture, did not meet with the approval of Rodney Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare, and were rejected.

Legal proceedings to dissolve approximately 4,000 defunct corporations in Illinois will be filed in the Circuit courts throughout the state soon by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom.

An organization meeting of the Buy Illinois Products commission, created by an act of the last session of the legislature, was held in Springfield. The call for the meeting was issued by Chairman Eugene Funk, Bloomington, and Secretary George Wharton, Chicago. The object of the commission is to outline plans to induce residents of the state to purchase and use products made in Illinois. Members of the commission were official guests along with Governor Emmerson, H. H. Cleveland, director of public works and buildings, and Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer, at a meeting called by the Illinois division of the National Paving Brick Manufacturers' association. At this meeting resolutions asking the state officials to consider the importance of using paving brick for road building because of the large brick manufacturing plants in Illinois giving employment to large numbers of workers, will be presented to the governor by the various chambers of commerce.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has announced the following appointments to the Illinois Revenue Laws commission, authorized at the last general assembly to study the Illinois revenue laws and taxation methods and to recommend to the next general assembly a modern system of taxation designed to distribute taxes in a more equitable manner among all classes of wealth: Harrison B. Riley, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company; Senator Arthur A. Huebsch of Brookfield and former State Senator H. S. Hicks of Rockford.

Senator Richard Barr of Joliet and Representatives Leroy Green, Rockford, and Alexander Wilson, Cairo, are other members of the commission.

Ralph H. Wilkin, librarian of the Supreme court of Illinois, died at the Norbury hospital, Jacksonville, where he had been under treatment for uraemic poisoning. His death culminated an illness of several months. Mr. Wilkin was appointed librarian in 1902 and had held that position continuously until his death. He was widely known among the courts and lawyers of Illinois as an efficient librarian and compiler of notes and decisions of the Supreme and Appellate courts.

Probation of first-time offenders who have committed minor offenses against society, was urged by Mrs. Maud G. Palmer, state probation officer, in an address before the Illinois conference of public welfare at Evanston. Mrs. Palmer made clear the distinction between probation and parole. Probation, she said, "is a purely voluntary arrangement between the judge and the offender with the alternative of going to prison. Persons are placed on probation prior to or instead of commitment, while parole is the grant of liberty under supervision after imprisonment; for the portion of the sentence still unserved. Probation and parole are administered under two separate divisions of the department of public welfare and at the present time have little connection."

Congressman Thomas S. Williams, Louisville, Clay county, Illinois, has announced that he expects to resign from the national house on November 18 to assume his duties as judge of the federal court of claims, to which position he was appointed by President Hoover. The appointment was recently confirmed by the senate. Representative Williams was one of the Republican leaders in farm relief legislation.

Twenty automobiles, purported to have been the loot of an automobile theft ring operating in Central Illinois, have been recovered by investigators for Secretary of State William J. Stratton, Phil Harmon, chief investigator has announced. The machines, stolen in Peoria, Urbana, Bloomington and other cities, had been disposed of in southern Illinois. As a result of the state department's activities 3 men have been arrested and released on bond.

Dismissal of the suits against the state's three-cent gasoline tax law is regarded as probable. A number of the larger companies, headed by the Standard Oil company, have signified a willingness to drop the cases. Senator Lowell B. Mason appeared before a meeting of oil firms' attorneys and voiced Governor Emmerson's wish that the suits be dropped so that the state's road program can be carried on without delay.

Approximately $2,000,000 out of the $6,000,000 collected by the state under the invalid 1927 gas tax law, is available for the state and counties for road purposes. The amount was involved in a case filed in the federal court by the Standard Oil company, and became available when the company failed to prosecute its appeal to the federal court of appeals. Judge Louis FitzHenry held the money be-longed to the state and gave attorneys 90 days in which to appeal.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has announced the appointment of Maj. Reed G. Landis of Chicago and Lieut. Howard C. Knotts, Springfield, as members of the aerial navigation commission. Senators Lowell B. Mason of Oak Park and Richard R. Meents of Ash-kum and Representatives E. C. Wilson of Kankakee and Charles H. Weber of Chicago were appointed to the commission some time ago by Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, president of the senate, and Speaker David E. Shanahan of the house, respectively. They will study aerial navigation.

Lesson for November 17

LIVING WITH PEOPLE OF OTHER RACES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:9-15, 30-35; Gal. 3:28, 29; Ruth 1:1-18; John 4:5-10; Rom. 1:14.

GOLDEN TEXT—Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Friends of Many Races.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Friends of Many Races.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Treating Those of Other Races as We Should Like to Be Treated.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Contribution of Various Racial Groups to a Common National Life.

I. God is No Respector of Persons (Acts 10:34).

The approach to the heart of this lesson is through the Golden Text. Paul declared on Mars' hill, "God hath made of one blood all the nations of men to dwell on all the face of the earth" (Acts 17:26).

II. Examples of Racial Harmony. 1. Ruth, the Moabitess (Ruth 1:1-18).

In the days of the Judges, because of famine in Judah, Elimelech and his family went to Moab to find subsistence. While there his two sons married Moabitish women. Not long after this, the father and the sons died, leaving three desolate widows. Learning that the famine was over, Naomi decided to return. Ruth insisted upon going with her and her determination was expressed in such wonderful words that they have become classic (Ruth 1:16, 17). She renounced her country and people in order to be identified with the people of the living God. In this we have an example of two very dissimilar people united as one.

2. The woman of Samaria (John 4:5-10).

This woman was not only of a despised people, but of a disreputable character. But when the light of God entered her soul she became a witness to her people of Christ, and the leader of a movement which prepared the way for the revival at the hands of Philip a few years later. That which removed the barrier between the Jews and Samaritans was the personal knowledge of Jesus Christ.

3. Cornelius, the Roman soldier (Acts 10:1-15, 30-35).

The Jews hated the Romans because they were under bondage to them. Peter, the head of the apostolic group, was a Jew of strong prejudice. The time had now come for the removal of the wall of partition between the Jews and the Gentiles. To do this God chose a high-grade and influential Gentile to make the transition. Cornelius was a devout man, though not saved.

In removing this wall, two visions were given:

(1) To Cornelius (Acts 10:3, 8). While engaged in prayer, an angel from God announced to him that his prayers and alms had come before God as a memorial, and instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter, who would tell him what to do.

(2) To Peter (Acts 10:9-16). In his vision Peter saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals, let down from heaven and heard the command, "Rise, Peter, kill and eat." Against Peter's protest God said, "What God hath cleansed, call thou not common." This vessel let down from heaven and taken back again indicated that both Jews and Gentiles were accepted on high. The spirit of God bade Peter to go with the messengers of Cornelius. Upon arrival, Peter explained to Cornelius how God had removed his Jewish prejudice and then, being assured that they were ready to hear the message from God, he preached Jesus Christ to them. In his sermon to Cornelius, he set forth:

a. The basis of salvation—the death of Christ.

b. The scope of salvation—whosoever believeth on Him.

c. The method of appropriation of this salvation—faith in Christ.

In endorsement of this message by Peter, the Holy Spirit was poured out and as the gospel now was reaching beyond the Jews, there was a new Pentecost.

III. All One in Christ Jesus (Gal. 3:28, 29).

In Christ all class and racial distinctions are lost. Let those who would hasten the period of racial good will bestir themselves to the task of preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ—the only means of uniting the various branches of the race.

Those Who Are Gone

Those who are gone, you have. Those who departed loving you, love you still; and you love them always. . . . They are only gone into the next room; and you will presently get up and follow them.—Thackeray.

According as Thy Faith

Art thou a beggar at God's door? Be sure thou testest a great bowl, for as thy bowl is, so shall be thy mess. According as thy faith, saith He, be it unto you.—John Bunyan.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

SCREEN-GRID . . . ELECTRO-DYNAMIC

Battery or House-Current

"SERVICE . . . WHAT FOR?"

look again . . . It's an Atwater Kent

ASK any Atwater Kent owner if he ever does anything more than tune in, sit back . . . listen.

Service? He's bought the kind of radio that almost never needs it, the kind that you will find in most farm homes today.

It's as mechanically perfect as a well-made watch. Please look inside and see. Every part is precise—accurate to a hair's breadth. That's why you can expect uninterrupted performance month after month, year after year.

This holds true for the millions of Atwater Kent Radios sold in past years. It holds true for the greatest radio Atwater Kent has ever built—the new Screen-Grid Set—Electro-Dynamic, of course.

You can have this new set operated either by batteries or from house-current, in a compact table model or a wide variety of fine cabinets. Either type assures you a radio that lets you listen every time you turn the switch.

ON THE AIR—Atwater Kent Radio Hour, Sunday Evenings, 9:15 (Eastern Time), WEAF network of N. B. C. Atwater Kent Mid-Week Program, Thursday Evenings, 10:00 (Eastern Time), WJZ network of N. B. C.

ATWATER KENT MANUFACTURING COMPANY
A. Atwater Kent, President
4764 Wissalickon Avenue Philadelphia, Pa.

IN CABINETS—The best American cabinet makers—famous for sound design and sincere workmanship—are cooperating to meet the demand for Atwater Kent Screen-Grid Radio in fine cabinets like these.

Also in COMPACT TABLE MODEL—For batteries, $77. For house-current operation, from $88 to $100. Electro-Dynamic table model speaker, $34.

Camouflage for Mice

Camouflage, which helped to win the World War, is being employed in Europe to catch mice. On the theory that rodents of today know their traps, inventors have produced, for use in office desks, a mouse-catcher shaped like a harmless paper clip. Another, for general use, resembles an old tin can whose top closes suddenly. Still another resets itself automatically to catch mice all night and dump them into a vat of water.

Sure, but Why Mention It?

When a mother, father and daughter live together and there is an argument, father is the minority.—Toledo Blade.

Makes Life Sweeter

Next time a coated tongue, fetid breath, or acrid skin gives evidence of sour stomach—try Phillips Milk of Magnesia!

Get acquainted with this perfect anti-acid that helps the system keep sound and sweet. That every stomach needs at times. Take it whenever a hearty meal brings any discomfort.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia has won medical endorsement. And convinced millions of men and women they didn't have "indigestion." Don't diet, and don't suffer; just remember Phillips. Pleasant to take, and always effective.

The name Phillips is important; it identifies the genuine product. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

In Memoriam

Of my dear wife and mother Mrs. Elsie Boerner, who passed away two years ago to-day, November 16, 1927.

God knows how much we miss her.

He counts the tears we shed and whispers,

"Hush, she only sleeps".

Your mother is not dead,

How often do we tread

The path that leads us to the grave

Where rests the one we loved so well, "Mother".
